GREETINGS FROM THE MAYOR:

On behalf of City Council, I would like to extend sincere greetings to all Steveston businesses, residents and visitors.

Now in its 26th year, Steveston Villager Business Directory continues to serve the Steveston community. The Villager is the only publication dedicated to the promotion of Steveston businesses, and is an integral part of this vibrant community. It is a welcome and valuable resource for all who use it.

One of Richmond's many gems, Steveston has something to offer everyone. Visitors are often pleasantly surprised at the richness of offerings in this quaint seaside village. Both historic and picturesque, there are trails, dykes, natural parks and gardens, and a wide selection of amenities. One can stroll along the docks, purchase fresh seafood directly off the local fishermen's boats, enjoy the area's fine cuisine, visit a museum, or shop the unique galleries and boutiques.

This summer, the Steveston community will once again be celebrating its annual Steveston Salmon Festival. A well loved tradition since 1945, the Steveston Salmon Festival is a wonderful opportunity for the entire community to gather and celebrate Canada's birthday while at the same time, welcome visitors from other parts of Richmond, the Lower Mainland, and the world.

Best wishes to all the contributors and users of the Spring 2012 issue of the Steveston Villager Business Directory.

Malcolm D. Brodie
Mayor

A Gem of a Place

*By John Yap
MLA for Richmond-Steveston
www.johnyapmla.bc.ca*

I'm sure we all say it every single day. "I love Steveston."

I believe Steveston is the gem in the crown of the Lower Mainland. Its beauty, history, community spirit, attractions, and wonderful people constantly make me feel lucky to live here. All of the above qualities also contribute to another great aspect of Steveston – its outstanding business community.

I worked for twenty years in banking and financial planning, so I have a keen appreciation for the entrepreneurial spirit and hard work needed to make a business thrive. I can honestly say that Steveston's business community has these qualities in spades.

Our small business people put everything they have into their businesses, and helping small business to succeed is one of the most important reasons I got into politics. I chose to run for the BC Liberals, because it is a party that understands two very important things. First, small businesses play a fundamental role in creating jobs and building strong communities. Secondly, government's role is to support this sector by reducing lowering taxes and reducing red tape.

On the tax front, we have cut the small business tax rate from 4.5 per cent to 2.5 per cent – a 44 per cent reduction. We have also more than doubled the small business tax threshold from $200,000 to $500,000 – an increase of 250 per cent. All of these tax measures keep more money right where it is needed – in the bank accounts of smallbusinesses so it can be used to make them grow.

We have also worked hard to reduce red tape, which Finance Minister Kevin Falcon described as "the silent job killer" in a recent interview with Global BC Noon News. Since 2001, we have taken on this job killer by reducing regulatory requirements by more than 42 per cent.

On January 17th, this government's work in reducing red tape was recognized by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business (CFIB) when they gave B.C. an "A" on their Red Tape Report Card. British Columbia was the only province to get an "A".

Now, this is all well and good, and I'm proud of this government's record of helping small business. However, none of what we have done matters without the entrepreneurs who act on their dreams, who have the drive to keep pushing and overcoming obstacles, and who work so hard to make their businesses survive and then thrive.

Steveston is blessed with a great many of these entrepreneurs who see all that Steveston offers – its beauty, history, community spirit, attractions, and wonderful people. These entrepreneurs build their businesses around these outstanding qualities, making Steveston an even greater place in the process.

Steveston truly is a gem of a place.

Building your child's brain!

The human brain consists of two parts, the left and the right hemisphere. The left brain is used in logical thinking and analytical processes. This is the part of the brain that is developed through math, reading and science. The right brain is used in emotional perception, intuition and creativity. It is the right brain that is mainly used when a child is involved in creative endeavors such as music, art, drama or dance.

For the brain to work efficiently, the two hemispheres of the brain must work together. By stimulating and exercising the right hemisphere of the brain, the arts strengthen the connection between the hemispheres.

Children should be exposed to the arts as their cognitive skills mature so that their right brain will be as developed as the left, and both hemispheres work in tandem, thus achieving the full potential of the mind.

In addition to the physiological benefits of the arts, there are also many practical life skills that your children will learn from good quality arts programming. They learn to:

- Think creatively, with an open mind
- Observe and describe, analyze and interpret
- Express feelings, with or without words.
- Practice problem-solving skills, critical-thinking skills
- Discover that there is more than one right answer, multiple points of view
- Collaborate with other children and with adults
- Build their confidence, blossom and excel even if they have physical, emotional or learning challenges
- Develop a sense of craftsmanship, quality task performance, and goal-setting
- Develop life skills such as an informed perception; articulating a vision; make decisions; develop the ability to imagine what might be; and accept responsibility to complete tasks from start to finish.

The Arts Connection has offered quality arts education in the Steveston community for 23 years! Check out our wide variety of programming for children of all ages beginning at 6 months ... www.theartsconnection.org

Creative minds grow at The Arts Connection!

Through creative expression, children develop fine and large motor skills, concentration, language and social skills and an understanding of rhythm and pitch.

A Vision for a Growing Legacy

Your Voice Forges the Future

Local interest groups within Steveston village has gathered together to discuss the concept of Steveston Development and Heritage Corporation. Listed below is the Initial Concept Paper to outline the topics discussed.

The vision?

Steveston becomes a dynamic economic, experiential and heritage hub for all citizens, whether they live there or are simply visiting for a few hours.

What?

A Steveston Development and Heritage Corporation to:

- > serve the public
- > harness Steveston's potential
- > act as champion of a vision
- > plan, coordinate, promote
- > steward and develop public infrastructure, properties and events
- > stimulate business investment
- > preserve Steveston's unique character and heritage

Why?

- > To maintain the synergy among all of the players, public and private, that makes Steveston an attractive destination and experiential hub for residents and visitors.
- > To be more nimble and responsive to emerging opportunities.
- > To be able to develop long-range plans that are beyond current political mandates.
- > To leverage public assets and their revenue potential, to provide long-term sustainable funding to re-develop, revitalize and maintain those publicly-owned assets. Today, public funding to maintain those assets is indeterminate at best.
- > To develop a physical master plan for Steveston's built form that protects the heritage and character that makes Steveston unique and responds to realities of current and future changes.

How?

- > A not-for-profit corporation, with the rights, powers and privileges of a natural person, owned by the City of Richmond, acting as an agent of the public, carrying out a public mandate in a private-sector environment.
- > A corporation that provides oversight and direction with a mandate to maximize assets to ensure their self-sufficiency and long-term sustainability.
- > A corporation that can incur debt, serviced by revenue created from the public assets, to finance public projects.
- > An umbrella body that forges partnerships with existing community organizations, businesses and others.
- > The City of Richmond and the Government of Canada would each lease on a long-term basis their assets to the Corporation, with lease terms specifying the obligations and rights of both parties.
- > The Corporation would enter into management and service agreements with other parties and enter into sub-leases, management agreements and other memoranda of understanding with third.

Who?

- > A high caliber Board of Directors, with Board members selected for their specific competencies rather than their representation. Between seven and eleven people.
- > Chosen by a Selection Committee: 1 City representative; 1 Federal Government representative; 1 Steveston Community Society representative; and 1 person elected by the other 3.

The scope?

- > Long-term physical planning for the 8 Waterfront Neighbourhoods

- > Infrastructure development
- > Property management
- > Business development
- > Community use of public space
- > Community event management
- > Heritage promotion
- > Financial management and planning for long-term financial sustainability

What assets?

The scope of the public assets that the Steveston Development and Heritage Corporation would manage includes:

- > Scotch Pond Historic Moorage Site
- > Garry Point Park and moorage pontoon float
- > All of Steveston Harbour Authority's waterside assets/infrastructure and upland real estate assets
- > Parks Canada's Gulf of Georgia National Cannery National Historic Site
- > Steveston Museum and Japanese Fishermen's Benevolent Association buildings
- > Steveston Tram and tram barn
- > City-owned Moncton Street property (Imperial Landing)
- > City-owned Imperial Landing public waterfront walkway and piers
- > City-owned Imperial Landing water lots
- > Phoenix Net Loft
- > Britannia Heritage Shipyard
- > Branscombe House
- > United Church Manse (Steveston Hwy and Railway Ave house)
- > The Number Two Road Pier
- > London Farm

Let us revisit the existing plans from 1976 – attached are plans for Steveston Harbour Development prepared by the Small Craft Harbours Branch of Fisheries and Oceans

Hi Everyone,

Attached are plans for Steveston Harbour development prepared by the Small Craft Harbours Branch of Fisheries and Oceans Canada in Oct. 2008. This is a follow up to the "Initial" Steveston Fishing Harbour evaluation produced by the Small Craft Harbours Branch, June 2, 1976.

In 1976 this was one of five proposals considered for harbour re-development. The other four proposals required a bridge across the east end of Steveston Channel to use Steveston I island as a sand hauling site. Selling river sand was an economic incentive. However, Steveston residents objected to destroying the island and trucking sand down No. 2 Rd.

Now, in 2012, there is an economic incentive to close off the Steveston Channel at each end from direct flow of the river in order to reduce the amount of silt deposited in the channel. Dredging the channel every few years costs millions of dollars. What was dubbed the environmental option in 1976, as it preserved the east end of the island, is now the preferred option.

However, 35 years have gone by. It is time for the Steveston community and all three levels of government to get behind the proposal and make it happen.

Cheers,
Harold

Please pass this on to others who may be interested.

Gulf of Georgia Cannery National Historic Site of Canada

OUR HISTORY

Along the banks of the lower Fraser River in the boomtown of Steveston, the Gulf of Georgia Cannery opened its doors for business in 1894. That was during the free-for-all days of the salmon canning industry and soon “the monster cannery” boasted hundreds of workers producing over a million cans of salmon every year. Each canning season brought together a diverse mix of workers, usually of First Nations, Chinese, Japanese and European origin. The Gulf of Georgia Cannery was representative of an industry that was one of the Province’s largest employers and whose work force laboriously churned out one of the Province’s principal export commodities. Over the years, the hordes of people manually canning salmon gave way to rows of high-speed machinery. For the Gulf of Georgia, the price to pay for these advancements would be a diminished role in the canning of salmon, as the last can of sockeye rolled off the production line in 1930. Instead of canning salmon, the Gulf’s new role would be as a salmon receiving and trans-shipment point within the large network of canneries being marshalled by its new owner, The Canadian Fishing Company.

The Gulf of Georgia Cannery remained quiet during the 1930s, but with the outbreak of the Second World War in Europe the Cannery was revitalised by an onslaught of new capital and expansion in anticipation of a new enterprise, namely herring. New machinery and an army of workers produced case after case of canned herring in tomato sauce, the major source of protein for allied soldiers and civilians struggling overseas during the war. Herring canning became an industry-wide endeavour and alongside it grew the business of herring reduction, that is, the transformation of herring into protein rich oil and meal for animal feeding purposes. The end of the war meant the end of a market and the end of herring canning in British Columbia. For the Gulf of Georgia Cannery, herring reduction would become the predominant activity by the late 1940s. The rise of this industry is reflected by the growth of the Cannery complex which saw three successive waves of expansion before the herring reduction industry was crippled by overfishing and government closure in the late 1960s. By the 1970s, a new market emerged in Japan for British Columbia herring roe and this ensured that the reduction operation at the Gulf would run once more. However, the new roe industry generated only a small amount of raw material for reduction, as catches formerly in the hundreds of thousands of tonnes were limited by regulation to the low tens of thousands. By 1979, the cost of operating the Cannery’s ageing reduction equipment became too much and the reduction plant was closed. The buildings would serve as a net loft and storage for The Canadian Fishing Company’s seine boat fleet and the era of transforming the Cannery into a museum would begin in earnest.

Throughout its history, West Coast fishing has helped fuel the economy and enrich the social fabric of B.C. This vibrant heritage is justly celebrated in Steveston, which was and remains an important centre of the West Coast fishing industry. The Gulf of Georgia Cannery is now a National Historical Site owned by Parks Canada and operated by the Gulf of Georgia Cannery Society. In 2011 the Society celebrated its 25th anniversary with a gathering for all who had been involved in saving this important part of Canadian history.

The Cover Page "Loading For The Morning Tide"

LOADING FOR THE MORNING TIDE STEVESTON, BRITISH COLUMBIA

"I painted this before it was a national historic site, and I sat on the foundation committee to save and develop the site. I wanted to create a feeling of how the waterfront would have appeared at the end of the season, when sailing ships would fill the harbour to load the pack of salmon in one-pound tins or salted down in brine and barrels. Here, the night shift continues to load a ship destined to sail on the morning tide."

If looks as if artists never retire. But then, who would really want to when there is so much beauty out there to paint?

John M. Horton

John Horton's lifelong love affair with the sea and maritime industries is readily apparent in his paintings and his lifestyle. John cruises B.C.'s coastal waters and observes keenly and recreates on canvas the life, the history and the industries which have arisen from the sea around our coast. He is a scrupulously realistic painter whose works embody technical mastery, a discerning eye for detail, and accuracy of representation. John's natural feeling for the sea is complemented by his profound sense of history and sensitivity to the many moods and subtleties of which the sea and marine life is capable. Mr. Horton's works have become part of many international private, corporate and public collections (Ralph Westmark - 'Playboard Magazine').

A Shaft Of Light

In 2009, John was invited by Winchester Galleries to paint a "Venice Exhibition". This meant going to Venice to gather sketch material and experience the "feel" of this fabulous old city. He has attempted to paint Venice as he had seen it - in perhaps a new light - not just the tourist view. While some paintings are historic others illustrate the working crumbling fabric of today's Venice.
